

Vulture's Row:

For those of you who missed out on the info regarding the super find for scratch building here's the info you missed:

Lisa Pavelka: Steam Punk Dust .75oz @ $6.99ea

This contains disassembled Wrist Watch Guts of every shape and description. It can be found in the Jewelry Making supplies department at our local Hobby Lobby. For those of you who didn't see these gadgets there is a wealth of super detailing parts in every pack. It might not sound like a lot of since it's sold by weight but .75 ounces of watch parts is a lot of stuff. Every pack is different so look at each and pick one that best suits what you build. When you examine the packages you can see: For the Car & Armor Guys - Steering Wheel Frames all kinds of Engine Detail parts, Elevation Wheels for Tank & Artillery Guns, etc. For the Aircraft guys there are all kinds of Trim Wheels, Engine Detail & Landing Gear Detail parts, etc. The SciFi guys will go nuts when they see what's in a pack. There are enough screws, pins, fine wire and a mass of other junk to please even the most discerning scratch builder. You can also find other items that might be of interest at Lisa's web site www.lisapavelka.com. At $6.99 for the pack and with a 40% off coupon it might be one of the best values a scratch builder will ever find. Don't be surprised if you buy a couple as they are that cool. If you're planning on sorting them once you purchase on I suggest an optivisor as some of the stuff is really small! I hope this adds to your arsenal of ideas for model building. It sure has helped me.
